Stockwell Good Neighbours is an older people’s club who meet in the bright and busy café of the Oval House Theatre.

There is a huge waiting list for places at Stockwell Good Neighbours and it’s easy to see why. The café is full of noise and laughter on a Monday morning, as domino games compete with a Tai Chi class.

And then there’s their famous - and energetic - choir. Most of the members are lonely, isolated and otherwise housebound, but singing brings them out and lifts their mood. They’ve performed at Oval House, the Stockwell Festival and the 'Big Event' in Myatts field with a group of young people with learning difficulties. The performances encourage older and younger generations to mix and learn from each other.
